ITABASHI Tourist Guide Map

Itabashi's Seven Deities of Good Fortune

The statues of the seven deities were carved by Kintaro Tanaka, a sculptor who lived in front of Kumano Jinja Shrine and was affectionately known as "Hori-Kin." He is said to have donated them to each of the temples around 1937. Each statue stands about 25 centimeters tall and is carved from unvarnished wood. All are made available for viewing by the temples from the 1st to the 7th of January every year. How about visiting each to each in succession during this period?

Residence site of the Maeda family of Kaga

The residence started out with the grant of 60,000 "tsubo" (about 200,000 square meters) of land in February 1679 by Ietsuna Tokugawa, the fourth shogun of the Edo Period, to Tsunanori Maeda, the fifth lord of the Kaga domain. After several additional grants, the property eventually expanded to over 217,000 "tsubo" (over 700,000 square meters; shown on the map). It was used as Maeda family's second home and for stays, hunting, and strolls by the members of the family during their lord's mandatory visits to Edo.

"Baby Station"

Itabashi City offers locations where people can stop by and use to change the babies' diapers or breastfeed them. Facilities with such spaces feature "Baby Station" flags or stickers. Please tell the facility staff when you're using the space.
